

Contents

List of contributors	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
JESSICA LYNNE PEARSON
PART I
The politics of oversight	21
1 National prerogatives versus international supervision: Britain's evolving policy toward the campaign for equivalency of United Nations' handling of dependent territories, 1945–1963	23
MARY ANN HEISS
2 A challenge to the system: the South West Africa question and the United Nations Trusteeship Council	40
JASON MORGAN
3 The United Nations, Italian decolonization, and the 1949 Bevin-Sforza plan: a victory for neocolonialism?	61
FRANCESCO TAMBURINI
PART II
Decolonizing global governance?	81
4 The United Nations between “old boys’ club” and a changing world order: the South African-Indian dispute at the United Nations, 1945–1955	83
ANGELA LOSCHKE

vi	Contents
5	“A crisis of confidence”: the postcolonial moment and the diplomacy of decolonization at the United Nations, ca. 1961 CAIO SIMÕES DE ARAÚJO	105
6	Haiti, the United Nations, and decolonization in the Congo CHANTALLE F. VERNA	127
	PART III
	Unraveling empire	149
7	The Trust Territory of Somaliland, 1950–1960: trusteeship or colony? ALESSIA TORTOLINI	151
8	The United Nations and Portuguese colonics, 1961–1962: information gathering and the evolving interpretation of Article 73(e) AURORA ALMADA E SANTOS	171
9	The United Nations and West Papuan self-determination: lingering conceptions of “civilization” in the decolonization process GRACE CHENG	206
	Index	234