

Dividing the spoils

Perspectives on military collections and the British empire

Edited by Henrietta Lidchi and Stuart Allan

MANCHESTER UNIVERSITY PRESS

CONTENTS

List of figures—vii

List of contributors—xi

Preface—xv

Acknowledgements—xviii

List of abbreviations—xix

Introduction: dividing the spoils Henrietta Lidchi and Stuart Allan	1
Part I Ideologies of empire and governance	17
1 Spoils of war: custom and practice Edward M. Spiers	19
2 The agency of objects: a contrasting choreography of flags, military booty and skulls from late nineteenth-century Africa John Mack	39
3 Collecting and the trophy John M. MacKenzie	60
Part II Military collecting cultures	83
4 Soldiering archaeology: Pitt Rivers and collecting 'Primitive Warfare' Christopher Evans	85
5 The officers' mess: an anthropology and history of the military interior Lt Col Charles Kirke (Rtd) and Nicole M. Hartwell	106
6 Seeing Tibet through soldiers' eyes: photograph albums in regimental museums Henrietta Lidchi with Rosanna Nicolson	128
7 A regimental culture of collecting Desmond Thomas	162
Part III The afterlives of military collections	185
8 Military histories of 'Summer Palace' objects from China in military museums in the United Kingdom Louise Tythacott	187

CONTENTS

9	Indigenising folk art: eighteenth-century powder horns in British military collections Stuart Allan and Henrietta Lidchi	205
10	Community consultation and the shaping of the National Army Museum's Insight gallery Alastair Massie	229
11	Mementoes of power and conquest: Sikh jewellery in the collection of National Museums Scotland Friederike Voigt	247
	Afterword: material reckonings with military histories Henrietta Lidchi	269

Archival sources—284

Bibliography—287

Index—314

LIST OF FIGURES

0.1	Horn cup with silver rim and silver mounts, acquired by Paymaster Thomson of the 33 rd Regiment, and taken at the Storming of Maqdala, 1868. (© National Museums Scotland.)	4
1.1	'Trophy Head' in gold from the Asante kingdom which was likely of ceremonial importance and may depict decapitated high-status enemy. (© The Wallace Collection.)	26
1.2	Illustration from The Graphic of 'The British Occupation of Benin: Loot from the King's Palace' by J. Nash from a photograph by Lieut. W. N. England, R. N. (By permission Anne S. K. Brown Military Collection, Brown University Library, Rhode Island.)	29
2.1	The 'high-end' loot from the Battle of Omdurman including the large black flag of the Mahdists, the bushcow drum and other iconic objects. The presence of a Japanese cuirass (in the Royal Collections) is puzzling. The photograph may have been taken in Egypt. (From a volume at the National Army Museum now out of copyright.)	47
2.2	The so-called 'Flag of the Benin Empire', an ensign likely to have been used on local boats in river creeks distant from Benin City, reinterpreted as a battlefield prize consistent with European expectation of the trophies. Acquired in 1897. (© National Maritime Museum, Greenwich, London.)	49
3.1	Tiger hunt, 1902. Photograph by Lala Deen Dayal, India, 1902. (Image courtesy of the National Army Museum, London.)	62
3.2	'Indian Trophies' of Captain Dick-Cunyngham VC, 2nd Battalion The Gordon Highlanders. (Image courtesy of the Gordon Highlanders Museum, Aberdeen.)	65
4.1	Pitt Rivers' Campaigns: Capt. Augustus Henry Lane Fox, Notman Studio portrait of 1862 (top left, © McCord Museum 1-2063.1); upper right, a Pitt Rivers'

LIST OF FIGURES

- excavation medallion and his Cissbury Hillfort excavation model (© Salisbury Museum, with kind permission); bottom, Wor Barrow excavations of 1893 (notice the theodolite prominently perched on top of the mound and, at its front, one of his excavation models of the site). (© Pitt Rivers Museum, University of Oxford.) 86
- 4.2 Military Collections: the Royal United Service Institution's Museum (top; from Old and New London, 1878, III, 344) and, below, 1828 watercolour showing interior of the Rotunda, Royal Military Repository, Woolwich (notice various fortification models in the foreground; British Museum: 1862,0614.202). (© The Trustees of the British Museum.) 97
- 5.1 Officers' Mess, 1st Battalion of The Prince of Wales's Own (West Yorkshire Regiment), 1890s. (© The Prince of Wales's Own Regiment of Yorkshire collection, York Army Museum.) 122
- 5.2 'Dinner to Major-General Sir W. F. Williams at the Royal Artillery Mess, Woolwich', Illustrated London News (12 July 1856), p. 28. 123
- 6.1 Print from Lang's photograph album showing a wet plate travel camera lower right (numbered 23). (By permission of the Royal Engineers Museum, Library & Archive.) 130
- 6.2 Print from Lang's photograph album showing portable darkroom tent for development in lower right (numbered 22 in Lang's album). (By permission of the Royal Engineers Museum, Library & Archive.) 132
- 6.3 'Gun and Sentry on top of Phari Fort' with amateur photographer revealed by stark sunlight. The stance suggests the use of a handheld camera. Note numbers to the right side 17/19. (© Royal Ulster Rifles Museum.) 137
- 6.4 Officers' portraits from White album. (By permission of the Royal Engineers Museum, Library & Archive.) 139
- 6.5 The cartoons captioned 'My officers', suggesting White's own work, though there seem two distinct styles. E. F. H. H. is presumably E. F. H. Hill and C. H. H., C. H. Haswell (see officers in Figure 6.4). (By permission of the Royal Engineers Museum, Library & Archive.)	140

6.6	Adjacent photographs from collective album showing officers and four of the seven members of the Royal Irish Rifles and one of their two Maxim machine guns. (Courtesy of the Trustees of The Fusilier Museum London.)	142
6.7	Adjacent photographs from collective album showing officers and four of the seven members of the Royal Irish Rifles and one their two Maxim machine guns. The small white dog appears in other photographs in the same album. (Courtesy of the Trustees of The Fusilier Museum London.)	143
6.8	'Looting after the fight at Guru on 16.2.04'. The battle at Guru occurred on 31 March 1904, and so it is odd that the date here is wrong as it corresponds neither to the event nor the time that the Rifles marched through Guru (perhaps indicating a later compiler). (© Royal Ulster Rifles Museum.)	148
6.9	'Thibetan curios from Lhasa'. The display includes butter lamps, tea urns, a bell (drilbu), thunderbolt (dorje), statues of Buddhist deities, oboes and small trumpets. (© Royal Ulster Rifles Museum.)	153
7.1	Display of modern regimental objects in the Museum of The Royal Regiment of Scotland, 2019. (Image courtesy of Mr Desmond Thomas.)	171
7.2	Traditional Afghan chapan coat gifted to a Royal Regiment of Scotland officer in 2011. (© Trustees of the Museum of The Royal Regiment of Scotland.)	175
8.1	Photograph of display case with 'Summer Palace' loot, Royal Engineers Museum c. 2011. (By permission of the Royal Engineers Museum, Library & Archive.)	191
8.2	Cloisonné incense burner on display as part of the formal dinner setting for a ball at Warley Barracks, 1899. (© Essex Regiment Museum.)	198

LIST OF FIGURES

9.1	Lieutenant John Longsdon's powder horn. (By permission of The Royal Green Jackets (Rifles) Museum, Winchester.)	210
9.2	Private James Cameron's powder horn. (© National Museums Scotland.)	212
9.3	Major William Gaull's priming flask. (By permission of the Royal Sussex Regiment Museum Trust.)	220
10.1	The Insight Gallery at the National Army Museum with, left to right, the Panjab, West Africa and Sudan cases. (© National Army Museum, reproduced courtesy of the Council of the National Army Museum.)	230
10.2	Ammunition belt attributed to Prince Charles of Bonny. (Image courtesy of the National Army Museum, London.)	240
11.1	Pendant (amulet) of gold inlaid with rubies, emeralds and peridot and with a casket at the back. Beneath the central rock crystal the triumphant Hindu goddess Durga riding on a lion-tiger, preceded by Hanuman carrying a battle-standard. Northern India, 1800–1850. Formerly in the possession of Maharaja Duleep Singh (1838–93). (© National Museums Scotland.)	252
11.2	Armlet (bazuband) of gilded silver set with large stones of rock crystal and attached crimson silk threads to fasten it around the upper arm. The back is made of gold and enamelled in translucent red, green and dark blue with a flower vase. Northern India, 1800–50. Formerly in the collection of the Earl of Dalhousie (1812–60). (© National Museums Scotland.)	253