

The Russian Revolution in Asia

From Baku to Batavia

Edited by
Sabine Dullin,
Étienne Forestier-Peyrat,
Yuexin Rachel Lin and
Naoko Shimazu

Contents

List of figures	vii
Table	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
List of contributors	xiii
Introduction: an Asian arc of the Russian Revolution	1
YUEXIN RACHEL LIN AND NAKO SHIMAZU
1 Transnational communism and Asia: a precocious encounter	14
SABINE DULLIN
SECTION 1
The Revolution in Russia's borderlands	35
2 From autonomy to an Asian revolution: Koreans and Buriat-Mongols in the Russian imperial revolution and the Soviet new imperialism, 1917–1926	37
IVAN SABLIN
3 A colonial revolution: the revolutions of 1917 in Semirech'e	55
AMINAT CHOKOBAEVA
4 Freedom on the fence: the Caucasian borderlands and the boundaries of revolution	70
ÉTIENNE FORESTIER-PEYRAT AND ALISA SHABLOVSKAĪA
SECTION 2
The wider arc of revolution in Asia	89
5 The Bolshevik infection: European perspectives on communism in the Netherlands East Indies press	91
FARABI FAKIH

6	The Comintern, the Communist Party of the United States and Chinese networks in the prewar Philippine communist movement (1920–1942)	108
	ANNA BELOGUROVA
7	(Un)preparing a revolution: the Comintern in the prelude to the 1926–1927 uprisings in Indonesia	122
	XIE KANKAN
8	Revolutions as transnational events: the Russian Revolution and Vietnam	138
	TUONG VU
9	The Russian Revolution in the Indian nationalist imaginary	155
	VINAY LAL
10	From political to cultural symbol: Beijing Moscow Restaurant and the evolution of Sino-Soviet relations	171
	ZHANG JIANHUA
SECTION 3
	Islam and the Revolution	187
11	Revolutionary situation in Turkestan (February 1917–February 1918): the local dynamics of the Russian revolutions	189
	CLOÉ DRIEU
12	Between backwardness and revolution: the equivocal genesis of “crimes of ways of life” in the first Soviet Penal Code, 1919–1924	206
	AUDE-CÉCILE MONNOT
13	The Russian revolutions and the emergence of the Indonesian communist movement: understanding the relationship between Islam and communism	225
	RADITYO DHARMAPUTRA, MUHAMAD ANUGRAH PRATAMA AND TISA LARASATI
	Index	241

Figures

0.1	“A Spectre is Haunting Europe. The Spectre of Communism”. Poster by Beno Teligater, 1920. Printed by the Baku Workers’ Cooperative Press. Text in Russian and Azerbaijani Turkish. Holdings of the State Central Museum of Contemporary History of Russia, all rights reserved	xviii
10.1	Moscow Restaurant at its opening in 1954. Personal collection of Zhang Jianhua	173
10.2	The main entrance to Moscow Restaurant today. Personal collection of Zhang Jianhua	181
10.3	Another entrance to Moscow Restaurant. Personal collection of Zhang Jianhua	183

Table

12.1	Crimes of way of life as listed in Chapter 10 of the Addendum to the 1924 Penal Code	217
------	--	-----