

What Happened After Mañjuśrī Migrated to China?

The Sinification of the Mañjuśrī Faith and the Globalization of the Wutai Cult

Edited by

Jinhua Chen, Guang Kuan and Hu Fo

Contents

Citation Information	vii
Notes on Contributors	x
Foreword	xi
Miaojiang Shi 釋妙江

The Transmission of Wutai Cult from South Asia to China

- 1 A chemical 'explosion' triggered by an encounter between Indian and Chinese medical sciences: another look at the significances of the Sinhalese Monk Śākyamitra's (567?–668+) visit at Mount Wutai in 667
Jinhua Chen 3
- 2 Fazang's theory of zhenru 真如 (Skt. tathatā) and zhongxing 種姓 (Skt. gotra): with a focus on the influence of the Ratnagotravibhāga
Zijie Li 19
- 3 Gathering medicines among the cypress: the relationship between healing and place in the earliest records of Mount Wutai
Susan Andrews 37

The Spread of the Wutai Cult in China: Center and Margins

- 4 A study on a stone lantern from Dongzhang village in medieval China
Huaiyu Chen 53
- 5 Northern Wei Wutaishan: an outside view of centres and peripheries
T. H. Barrett 77
- 6 How the Mount Wutai cult stimulated the development of Chinese Chan in southern China at Qingliang monasteries
George A. Keyworth 89
- 7 The way of the Nine Palaces (jiugong dao 九宮道): a lay Buddhist movement
Barend J. ter Haar 113

The Wutai Cult in Japan

- | | | |
|----|--|-----|
| 8 | Moving monks and mountains: Chōgen and the cults of Gyōki, Mañjuśrī, and Wutai
David Quinter | 133 |
| 9 | Decentering Mañjuśrī: some aspects of Mañjuśrī's cult in medieval Japan
Bernard Faure | 157 |
| 10 | Representations of the Wutai Mountains in classical Japanese literature
Robert Borgen | 170 |

The Wutai Cult in Tibet, Mongolia, Khotan and Korea

- | | | |
|----|--|-----|
| 11 | Tibeto-Mongol Buddhist architecture and iconography on Wutaishan, seventeenth to early twentieth centuries
Isabelle Charleux | 213 |
| 12 | A visit of Christian missionaries at Mount Wutai: Mongol Buddhism from a cross-cultural perspective
Temur Temule | 263 |
| 13 | The Mañjuśrī cult in Khotan
Imre Hamar | 278 |
| 14 | Ennin's (793–864) Sillan connections on his journey to Mt. Wutai: a fresh look at Ennin's travel record
Pei-ying Lin | 288 |
| | Index | 302 |