

A Handbook of Media and Communication Research

Qualitative and Quantitative Methodologies

Edited by

Klaus Bruhn Jensen

3rd edition

Contents

	List of illustrations	viii
	Notes on contributors	xi
	Preface	xiv
	Note on the text	xv
1	Introduction: the state of convergence in media and communication research Klaus Bruhn Jensen	1
	PART I – HISTORY: SOURCES OF MEDIA AND COMMUNICATION RESEARCH	23
2	The humanistic sources of media and communication research Klaus Bruhn Jensen	25
3	The social-scientific sources of media and communication research Michael Meyen	54
	PART II – SYSTEMATICS: PROCESSES OF COMMUNICATION	71
	Media organizations
4	The production of entertainment media Amanda D. Lotz and Horace Newcomb	75
5	News production Folker Hanusch and Phoebe Maares	93
	Media texts
6	Analysing news discourse Darren Kelsey and Lyndon Way	112

7	Mediated fiction Kay Richardson	136
	Media users
8	Media effects: quantitative traditions Klaus Bruhn Jensen	156
9	Media reception: qualitative traditions Klaus Bruhn Jensen	177
	Media contexts
10	Communication in contexts: beyond mass-interpersonal and online-offline divides Klaus Bruhn Jensen	193
11	The cultural contexts of media and communication Klaus Bruhn Jensen	213
12	History, communication, and media Janice Peck	232
	PART III – PRACTICE: SCIENTIFIC APPROACHES AND SOCIAL APPLICATIONS	253
	Empirical research designs
13	Quantitative approaches to media and communication research Jacob Ørmen	255
14	The qualitative research process Klaus Bruhn Jensen	286
15	Digital methods for media and communication research Rasmus Helles	307
16	The complementarity of qualitative and quantitative methodologies in media and communication research Klaus Bruhn Jensen	328
	Multiple media, multiple methods
17	Personal media in everyday life: a baseline study Rasmus Helles	349
18	Media industries and audience research: an analytic dialogue on the value of engagement Annette Hill	368

19	Employing media-rich participatory action research to foster youth voice Lynn Schofield Clark and Margie Thompson	388
	Communicating research
20	The social origins and uses of media and communication research Klaus Bruhn Jensen	411
	References	434
	Index	495

Illustrations

FIGURES

1.1	Constituents of communication	11
1.2	Four models of meaning	12
1.3	Three types of interactivity	16
1.4	The public-sphere model	18
1.5	An anatomy of media and communication research	21
2.1	A brief chronology of human communication	28
2.2	The hermeneutic circle	32
2.3	The process of semiosis	35
2.4	Two levels of signification	37
5.1	A model of news production	95
6.1	Number of articles in individual newspapers	115
6.2	Articles across sample period	115
6.3	Second World War discourses	116
8.1	The stages of communication, as defined by audience research traditions	157
8.2	Adoption of black-and-white and color television in the United States	159
8.3	Dimensions of campaign objectives and effects	167
8.4	1995 chart of values among Danish media users	174
9.1	Milestones of media and communication research	178
9.2	Two varieties of reception study	189
9.3	Three flows of media use	192
10.1	Communicative practices across media types	196
10.2	Horizontal and vertical intertextuality	201
10.3	Jakobson's (1960) model of communication	206
10.4	Language and meta-language	208
11.1	Three communication flows within and between countries	219
12.1	Media triangle	235
III.1	Six prototypical empirical methods	253
13.1	Sampling process	256
13.2	Law of large numbers	257
13.3	Clustering and stratification sampling techniques	259
13.4	Scope of study	264
13.5	Standard visualizations of univariate and bivariate analyses	276
13.6	The normal distribution curve	277
13.7	Regression line with error margins	280
13.8	Anscombe's Quartet	281

14.1	The role of language in qualitative methodologies	293
14.2	Production and reception discourses	298
15.1	Network of friendships in a high-school class, based on members' communication on social media	321
16.1	The signs of science	329
16.2	Two paradigms of research	330
16.3	Six levels of empirical research	333
16.4	Dimensions of validity and reliability	342
16.5	Three domains of reality	346
16.6	Empirical microcosms, theoretical macrocosms	347
17.1	Diffusion of personal media	356
17.2	Mobile media use and age	358
17.3	Normal and log-normal distributions	359
17.4	Age and text messaging	360
18.1	Fieldwork design for the auditions for Got to Dance	379
20.1	Types of media and communication research organizations	423
20.2	Ten rules for the conduct of empirical studies	431

TABLES

13.1	Types of experiments	265
13.2	Levels of measurement	274
13.3a	Observed distribution	282
13.3b	Expected distribution	282
15.1	TF IDF analysis of the chapters in the Handbook	325
17.1	A typology of communicative practices	351
18.1	Got to Dance season 5 social media engagement	384
18.2	Got to Dance ratings performance	384
19.1	Complementarities and distinctions across research traditions	394

IMAGES

6.1	Civilised protesters	126
6.2	Shame	128
6.3	Johnson delegitimised	131
6.4	Hostile Europe	132
6.5	Knowledgeable Erdoğan	133

ANALYSIS BOXES

4.1	Studying media industries in the field	86
5.1	The case of audiences as extra-media influences	105
8.1	Correspondence analysis of living conditions, lifestyles, and media use	174
10.1	Search engines as communication and meta-communication	202
14.1	Discourse analysis of qualitative interview data	301
15.1	Sampling last.fm	316
15.2	Using an application programming interface	317
15.3	Calculating term frequency-inverse document frequency	324
17.1	Realism and retroduction	354
17.2	Sampling and representativity	357

17.3	Reliability and validity	358
17.4	Mixing methods	361
17.5	Reduction in qualitative analysis	363

RESOURCE BOXES

1.1	General reference works and journals	3
1.2	Selected studies and reference works for individual media	4
20.1	Histories of media and communication research as a field	418