

Contents

Editorial Board	xi
About the Editor-in-Chief	xiii
About the Associate Editors	xv
Contributors	xvii
A Note From the Publisher	xxi
Introduction	xxiii
 Part I. Perspectives on Consumer Psychology	 1
Chapter 1. Consumer Psychology: Evolving Goals and Research Orientations	3
Joel B. Cohen and William L. Wilkie
Chapter 2. The Activation and Use of Declarative and Procedural Knowledge	47
Robert S. Wyer Jr.
Chapter 3. Intentional Behaviorism: A Research Methodology for Consumer Psychology ..	79
Gordon R. Foxall
Chapter 4. Structural Equation Models in Consumer Research: Exploring Intuitions and Deeper Meanings of SEMs	103
Richard P. Bagozzi
Chapter 5. Understanding the Changing Role and Functions of Marketing	143
Kevin Lane Keller
 Part II. Consumers Have Demographic and Psychographic Characteristics	 163
Chapter 6. Poverty and Consumer Psychology	165
Ronald Paul Hill
Chapter 7. Children as Consumers: A Review of 50 Years of Research in Marketing ..	185
Deborah Roedder John and Lan Nguyen Chaplin
Chapter 8. Gender Research in Marketing, Consumer Behavior, Advertising, and Beyond: Past, Present, and Future	203
Linda Tuncay Zayer and Kathryn P. Ponder
Chapter 9. A Structural Versus Dynamic View of Personality in Consumer Behavior ..	219
Suresh Ramanathan
Chapter 10. Consumer Values	249
Eda Gurel-Atay
Chapter 11. Lifestyle and Sport: Emulation Marketing	267
Pierre Valette-Florence, Tony Meenaghan, and Lynn R. Kahle

Part III. Consumers Live in a Social Psychological World	299
Chapter 12. Cultural Influences on Consumer Psychology	301
Carlos J. Torelli and Sharon Shavitt
Chapter 13. Attitude Change and Persuasion: Classic, Metacognitive, and Advocacy Perspectives.	323
Zakary L. Tormala and Derek D. Rucker
Chapter 14. Social Relationships and Consumer Behavior	351
Kelley Gullo Wight, Peggy J. Liu, James R. Bettman, and Gavan J. Fitzsimons
Chapter 15. Sustainability: Understanding Consumer Behavior in a Circular Economy. .	373
Marius Claudy and Mark Peterson
Chapter 16. Marketing Ethics, Ethical Consumers, and Ethical Lapses	393
Ann-Marie Kennedy and Sommer Kapitan
Chapter 17. The Role of Time in Consumer Psychology	413
Ashwani Monga, Ozum Zor, and Rafay A. Siddiqui
Chapter 18. Psychological Aspects of Economic Expectations	429
Richard Curtin
Part IV. Businesses Use Psychology to Communicate With Consumers	449
Chapter 19. Language and Consumer Psychology	451
Ruth Pogacar, Alican Mecit, Fei Gao, L. J. Shrum, and Tina M. Lowrey
Chapter 20. The Consumer Psychology of Traditional Media	471
Esther Thorson
Chapter 21. Social Media: From Classic Psychological Theories to New Opportunities. .	489
Cait Lamberton and Ashlee Humphreys
Chapter 22. Celebrity Endorsements	513
Eda Gurel-Atay
Part V. Consumers Process Cognitions and Affect	527
Chapter 23. Omission Neglect and Consumer Judgment and Inference Based on Limited Evidence.	529
Frank R. Kardes, Steven S. Posavac, and Donald R. Gaffney
Chapter 24. Three Mechanisms of Mind–Body Influence: Feelings, Concepts, and Procedures	551
Spike W. S. Lee and Lorenzo Cecutti
Chapter 25. The Interplay of Affect and Cognition: A Review of How Feelings Guide Consumer Behavior.	581
Rashmi Adaval and Maria Galli
Chapter 26. Consumer Involvement and Engagement: From Involvement’s Elaboration Likelihood to Engagement’s Investment Propensity	609
Linda D. Hollebeek and Rajendra K. Srivastava
Chapter 27. Neural Basis of Consumer Decision Making and Neuroforecasting	621
Alexander Genevsky and Carolyn Yoon
Chapter 28. Consuming for Happiness	637
Siok Kuan Tambyah and Soo Jiuan Tan

Part VI. Businesses Use Psychology to Carry Out Functions	647
Chapter 29. Omnichannel Retailing: A Consumer Perspective	649
Peter C. Verhoef, Koert van Ittersum, P. K. Kannan, and Jeff Inman
Chapter 30. Perceived Price Differences and Consumer Behavior	673
Kent B. Monroe
Chapter 31. The Brand Property Strength Framework: Integrating Theory and Research on Brand Consumer Psychology	691
Joseph R. Priester, Monique A. Fleming, Leigh Anne Novak Donovan, and Chaumanix Dutton
Chapter 32. Innovation and Product Development.	713
Doug Hall
Chapter 33. Human Factors Research and User-Centered Design	725
Robert W. Proctor, Leon Zeng, and Kim-Phuong L. Vu
Index	739