

Contemporary Crime Fiction:

Crossing Boundaries, Merging Genres

Edited by

Charlotte Beyer

Cambridge
Scholars
Publishing

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
------------------------	----

Permissions.....	x
------------------	---

Contemporary Crime Fiction: A Surfeit of Riches	1
Charlotte Beyer

I. Gender and Genre

More than a Secretary, More than a Sidekick: Robin Ellacott in the Cormoran Strike Series by Robert Galbraith.....	20
Elena Avanzas Álvarez

“I Stand Out Like a Raven”: The Female Detective and Tudor History in Nancy Bilyeau’s The Crown	39
Charlotte Beyer

Bloody Women: How Female Authors Have Transformed the Scottish Contemporary Crime Fiction Genre	61
Lorna Hill

II. Domestic Noir

“Chick Noir”: Shopaholic Meets Double Indemnity	80
Victoria Kennedy

The “Gone Girl Effect”: “Girling” the Femme Fatale in Gillian Flynn’s Gone Girl	100
Rosie Couch

III. Genre and Literary Experimentation

A Japanese-American Sam Spade: The Metaphysical Detective in Death in Little Tokyo , by Dale Furutani	124
Carla Portilho

Discipline and Murder: Panoptic Pedagogy and the Aesthetics of Detection in J.G. Ballard's Running Wild	137
Cornelia Macsiniuc

IV. Place and Crime

Place as a Character in the Contemporary Crime Fiction Series	158
Elspeth Latimer

"She Looked West": Martha Grimes' Environmental Crime Novel Biting the Moon	187
Charlotte Beyer

Notes on Contributors.....	209
----------------------------	-----

Index.....	212
------------	-----