

Matthew Paris on the Mongol Invasion in Europe

by

ZSUZSANNA PAPP REED

BREPOLS

Table of Contents

List of Illustrations	9
Abbreviations	11
Introduction	15
Chapter 1. Inside the Book	25
Mise-en-abîme Within and Without	27
The North by the North-west	42
Chapter 2. Outside the Book	55
The Book in the Scriptorium	56
The Scriptorium in England	63
England in the European Networks	89
Northern Connections	91
The Council of Lyon in 1245	107
Chapter 3. Fight. Mongols in the North and East (1237–1240)	123
1237: Chaldeans, Medes, Persians, and Armenians	126
1238: Northbound to Hungaria major	132
1239: Dacia, Gothia, Frisia	148
1240: False Alarm and Irruption	155
Chapter 4. Fight. Mongols in the Middle (1241)	159
Holy War on the Mongols	162
The First 1241 Cluster	172
Henry Raspe's Letter	175
Frederick II's Letter	188
The Second 1241 Cluster	214
Chapter 5. Flight. Rivalling Stories of Retreat (1243–1248)	225
1243: The Tartar Khan's Englishman	227
1244: Frederick's Triumph	256
1244: The Man from Russia	264
1245–1248: Endgame	272

Chapter 6. Letters from the Afflicted Lands in the Additamenta	281
Chapter 7. The Afterlife of Matthew's Mongol Story	313
Chronicles and their Afterlife	316
The Flores historiarum	318
An Elizabethan Bestseller	335
Back to the Future: Modern Historiography	352
Loco prologi	364
Appendix 1. Alternating Storylines: Europe, Britain, and the Holy Land in 1237	369
Appendix 2. Comparison of Phrases	373
Appendix 3. Alternating Frederick's Story	377
Appendix 4. Mongol-Related Entries and Clusters: 1241	379
Appendix 5. Events and Rumours: 1241 vs 1244	383
Appendix 6. List of Manuscripts	387
Bibliography	409
Index	453

List of Illustrations

Figures

Figure 1.	Matthew Paris on his deathbed, Historia Anglorum , MS R, fol. 218 ^v .	35
Figure 2.	Example for headings and initials, MS B, fol. 145 ^r .	40
Figure 3.	Terra habitabilis in MS A, fol. vii ^v .	46
Figure 4.	Terra habitabilis in MS C, fol. 1 ^v .	47
Figure 5.	The narrative structure of the first 1241 cluster.	174
Figure 6.	Mongol warrior, MS B, fol. 145 ^r .	197
Figure 7.	Cannibal feast, MS B, fol. 167 ^r .	234
Figure 8.	News of the episcopal election of Otto of Montferrat, MS B, fol. 166 ^v .	248
Figure 9.	Drawing of the Pisan and Genoese galleys, MS B, fol. 147 ^r .	249
Figure 10.	'Impertinens' notation on the margin and arrows in the gutter between columns in MS B, fol. 170 ^v .	260
Figure 11.	Matthew Paris, 'Self-Portrait with the Virgin Mary', Historia Anglorum , MS R, fol. 6 ^r .	315
Figure 12.	Archbishop Parker's (?) note at the bottom of a page in the Chronica majora . MS B, fol. 106 ^v , col. b. The next leaf is torn from MS B.	341
Figure 13.	The Croatian-Hungarian Count Nicholas Zrinyi's victories over the Ottomans were transformed into curious Tartar-themed materials, such as this printed sheet.	351

Tables

Table 1.	Correlation between references to Legate Otto and Mongol-related entries in the Chronica majora .	106
Table 2.	The structure of Ivo of Narbonne's letter with Matthew Paris's preface and commentary	229