European Migration Law

DANIEL THYM

Professor of European and International Law, University of Konstanz

Contents

Table of Cases Table of EU Legislation	xxi
List of Abbreviations	xxxi
List of Addreviations	xliii
Introduction: European Migration Law as a Field of Inquiry	1
PART I OVERARCHING THEMES
1. Building an Area of Freedom, Security, and Justice	13
1.1 From International to EU Migration Law	14
1.1.1 Parallelism of emigration, imperialism, and tourism	14
1.1.2 Migration law as a by-product of state formation	16
1.1.3 Towards international protection for refugees	17
1.1.4 Prehistory of EU rules on labour migration	18
1.1.5 Free movement within the single market	20
1.1.6 Colonial migration: the downside of free movement	20
1.1.7 Theoretical ambiguity of Union citizenship	22
1.2 Towards Distinct Policies for Third Country Nationals	24
1.2.1 'Schengen': compensatory logic	24
1.2.2 Treaty of Maastricht: fragile intergovernmental cooperation	26
1.2.3 Treaty of Amsterdam: gradual supranationalisation	27
1.2.4 Treaty of Lisbon: autonomy of migration law	29
1.2.5 European Council: political programming	29
1.2.6 Public discourse between 'fortress Europe' and 'common values'	31
1.3 Distinguishing Union Citizenship from Third Country Nationals	33
1.3.1 Primary law: open-ended Treaty objectives	34
1.3.2 Legislative leeway within the confines of human rights	35
1.3.3 Overlap with Union citizenship	37
1.3.4 Tipping points in the legislative process	39
1.4 Summary	40
2. Institutional Prerogatives and Decision-making	42
2.1 Driving Forces behind Europeanisation	42
2.1.1 The choice for Schengen as an example	43
2.1.2 Continuity of mixed results in migration policy	44
2.1.3 From 'permissive consensus' to 'constraining dissensus'	46
2.1.4 The danger of institutional blockage	47
2.2 Influence on the Policy Output	49
2.2.1 Commission	49
2.2.1.1 Civil servants between expertise and politics	49
2.2.1.2 Technocratic posture on migration law	50
2.2.2 European Council	51
2.2.3 Council	52

x	CONTENTS
A	2.2.3.1 The 'backroom': working parties of national civil servants	52
	2.2.3.1 The backhoom, working parties of material bring 2.2.3.2 Consensus culture in the shadow of majority voting	53
	2.2.4 European Parliament	54
	2.2.4 European Familient 2.2.4.1 Committees as the 'engines' of parliamentary impact	55
	2.2.4.2 Shifting positions on migration law	55
	2.3 Interinstitutional Practices	56
	2.3.1 Treaty change: limited relevance	56
	2.3.2 Secondary legislation: prevalence of informal 'trilogues'	57
	2.3.3 Curtailment of delegated and implementing acts	58
	2.3.4 Ancillary role of 'soft law'	59
	2.3.5 International cooperation: side-effects of informalisation	60
	2.3.6 Private actors: a democratic virtue for migration law?	61
	2.4 Differentiated Integration: Opt-outs after Brexit	63
	2.4.1 Denmark: the long shadow of the referenda	64
	2.4.2 Ireland: relic of British reticence	65
	2.5 Summary	67
3.	Court of Justice: Achievements and Limitations	69
	3.1 Influence of the Court Architecture	69
	3.1.1 Collective and multi-lingual adjudication	70
	3.1.2 Horizontal outlook beyond migration law	71
	3.1.3 Frontex, Asylum Agency, and the pitfalls of specialised tribunals	72
	3.1.4 Non-governmental organisations and the limits of third party intervention	73
	3.2 Constitutional Authority of the Supranational Judiciary	74
	3.2.1 Reputation of 'constitutional imagination'	75
	3.2.2 Migration law: 'administrative mindset'	76
	3.2.3 Interaction with the legislature	77
	3.3 Access to and Output in the Area of Migration	79
	3.3.1 Validity disputes	79
	3.3.1.1 Direct actions by individuals on migratory matters	79
	3.3.1.2 Privileged access by the EU institutions	80
	3.3.2 Infringement proceedings	80
	3.3.2.1 Importance of the pre-litigation stage	81
	3.3.2.2 Changing dynamics in migration law	81
	3.3.3 Preliminary references	83
	3.3.3.1 Stark discrepancies between the Member States	83
	3.3.3.2 Carrots and sticks for loyal cooperation	85
	3.3.3.3 Between micromanagement and vagueness 3.3.4 'Demand' side	86
		87
	3.3.4.1 Thematic asymmetries in migration law3.3.4.2 Strategic litigation to the benefit of migrants	87
	3.4 Alternative Accountability Mechanisms	89
	3.4.1 Accountability for wrongdoing beyond courts	90
	3.4.2 Ombudspersons as vehicles of administrative control	90
	3.4.3 Financial and managerial accountability	91
	3.4.4 Political oversight by parliaments	92
	3.4.5 Access to documents as a source of public debates	93
	3.5 Summary	94
		94

4.	Inte	erdisciplinary Perspectives and Methodology	96
	4.1	Drivers of Migratory Movements	96
		4.1.1 Numerous 'push' and 'pull' factors	97
		4.1.2 Migration as a process over time	99
		4.1.3 Intermediate level: networks, regimes, and infrastructures	101
		4.1.4 Continuum of 'voluntary' and 'forced' migration	102
	4.2	Significance of State Measures	103
		4.2.1 Normative background: the open borders debate	104
		4.2.2 Explaining the 'control gap': the liberal paradox	105
		4.2.3 Public opinion and intergroup threat perceptions	106
		4.2.4 Multiple actors of migration governance	107
		4.2.5 Individual migrant agency	109
	4.3	Law as an Instrument of Government	110
		4.3.1 Starting point: Foucault and constructivism	110
		4.3.2 'Labels' as a means of government	111
		4.3.3 Language between 'abuse', 'crisis', and 'normality'	112
		4.3.4 Securitisation versus rights-based approach	114
	4.4	Legal Methodology between Doctrine and Critique	115
		4.4.1 Academic discourse: from enthusiasm to scepticism	115
		4.4.2 Between 'black letter' and doctrinal constructivism	116
		4.4.3 Interdisciplinary and critical approaches	118
	4.5	Summary	120
5.	Hu	man Rights and State Sovereignty	122
		'Aliens Law' as Protection qua Nationality	123
		5.1.1 Historic minimum standards as inter-state obligations	123
		5.1.2 Limited impact of the conventions of the Council of Europe	124
		5.1.3 Reduction of statelessness as a legal obligation	126
	5.2	Human Rights qua Personhood	127
		5.2.1 Individual guarantees for 'everyone'	127
		5.2.2 Hanna Arendt and the 'right to have rights'	128
		5.2.3 Normative counterweight to state sovereignty	129
	5.3	Lead Function of the European Convention	130
		5.3.1 Judicial dynamism in the field of migration	130
		5.3.2 Focus on general principles and the Grand Chamber	132
		5.3.3 Interaction with EU law	133
	5.4	Added Value of the Charter	134
		5.4.1 More generous protection	134
		5.4.2 Rights of the child as an example	135
		5.4.3 EU not a 'human rights organisation'	136
		5.4.4 Limited scope of application of the Charter	137
	5.5	Complementary Role of International Bodies and Political Fora	139
		5.5.1 Plethora of human rights treaty bodies	139
		5.5.2 Potential source of dynamism in the field of migration	140
		5.5.3 Special rapporteurs and diplomatic initiatives	141
		5.5.4 Global Compacts for Migration and on Refugees	142 143
	5.6	Refugee Convention: Distant Lodestar	143
		5.6.1 Interaction with Union law	145
		5.6.2 Supporting role in the judicial practice	145
		5.6.3 Practical priority of human rights	147
	5.7	Summary	140

xii	CONTENTS
6	Doctrinal Foundations of the Case Law	150
0.	6.1 'Legal Order' as Doctrinal Self-sufficiency	150
	6.2 The Promise and Limits of Coherence	152
	6.2.1 Legislative fragmentation	152
	6.2.2 Vision of an 'immigration code'	153
	6.2.3 Interpretative approximation	154
	6.3 Constitutional Essentials in Migration Law	155
	6.3.1 Direct effect and primacy as an everyday practice	155
	6.3.2 No categorical distinction between directives and regulations	156
	6.3.3 Subsidiarity as political preference	157
	6.4 Pitfalls of the Interpretative Exercise	158
	6.4.1 Multilingualism of EU migration law	158
	6.4.2 Revival of the drafting history	159
	6.4.3 Indeterminacy of teleological interpretation	160
	6.4.4 Autonomous concepts and their limits	162
	6.4.5 Effet utile as a useful doctrinal tool	163
	6.5 Individual Rights of Migrants	163
	6.5.1 Individual rights enshrined in legislation	164
	6.5.2 Added valued in comparison to human rights	164
	6.5.3 Ambiguous Court practice on the Charter	166
	6.5.3.1 Interpretation in conformity with human rights	166
	6.5.3.2 Silence or vagueness on the Charter	166
	6.5.4 Scope of the right to an effective remedy	168
	6.6 Practical Tips for Dealing with the Case Law	169
	6.7 Summary	170
7.	Administrative Dimension	172
	7.1 European Migration Law as a Composite System	173
	7.1.1 Conceptual vagueness of 'areas' and 'systems'	173
	7.1.2 Multiplicity of actors at different levels	175
	7.1.3 Operational character of asylum and border controls	176
	7.1.4 Diverse avenues of inter-state cooperation	177
	7.2 National Procedural Autonomy and Its Limits	179
	7.2.1 The many faces of procedural harmonisation	179
	7.2.2 Effectiveness as a corrective vehicle	180
	7.2.2.1 Court practice on migration law	181
	7.2.2.2 Time limits as a test case	182
	7.2.3 Fundamental right to an effective remedy	182
	7.2.3.1 Availability of legal remedies	183
	7.2.3.2 Scope of judicial oversight	183
	7.2.3.3 Suspensive effect and legal assistance 7.2.4 Good administration	184
		185
	7.2.4.1 Giving reasons and right to be heard	185
	7.2.4.2 Consequences of procedural deficits7.3 Transnational Effects of Horizontal Cooperation	186
	7.3.1 Visas and databases: rules in according to the	187
	7.3.1 Visas and databases: rules in secondary legislation7.3.2 Entry bans: failure of inter-state consultation	188
	7.3.3 Intra-EU mobility: 'golden visas' as an abusive practice?	189
	7.4 Money as a Means of Governance	191
	7.5 Summary	191
		195

CONTENTS	xiii
CONTENTS	лш

8.	Age	encies (Frontex and Asylum Agency)	197
	8.1	Theory and Policy Design	198
		8.1.1 Elusive vision of administrative centralisation	198
		8.1.2 The choice for Frontex and the Asylum Office	200
		8.1.3 Formal expansion of the mandates	201
		8.1.4 Exponential growth in practice	202
	8.2	Constitutional Foundations	203
		8.2.1 Involvement in administrative decision-making	203
		8.2.2 'Meroni' doctrine: no decisive hurdle	205
		8.2.3 Territorial scope	206
	8.3	Frontex: Institutional Muscle Formation	207
		8.3.1 Operational powers	207
		8.3.2 Supervision of the Member States	208
		8.3.3 Cooperation with third states	209
		8.3.4 Eurosur and procurement of equipment	210
	8.4	Asylum Agency: Latecomer with Subtle Influence	211
		8.4.1 Information gathering and practical guidance	211
		8.4.2 Operational support in 'hotpots' and beyond	212
		8.4.3 Supervision and international cooperation	214
	8.5	Accountability for Wrongdoing	214
		8.5.1 Legislative provisions on agency involvement	215
		8.5.2 Institutional governance	217
		8.5.3 Legal remedies for composite procedures	218
	06		221
	0.0	Summary	221
9.		tabases	221
9.	Dat
9.	Dat	tabases	223
9.	Dat	tabases Theory and Policy Design	223 224
9.	Dat 9.1	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure	223 224 224 225 227
9.	Dat 9.1	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades	223 224 224 225
9.	Dat 9.1	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations	223 224 224 225 227 227 228
9.	Dat 9.1	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations 9.2.1 Supranational competences	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations 9.2.1 Supranational competences 9.2.2 Decentralised network structure 9.2.3 Territorial scope An Overview of Migration Databases	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations 9.2.1 Supranational competences 9.2.2 Decentralised network structure 9.2.3 Territorial scope	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations 9.2.1 Supranational competences 9.2.2 Decentralised network structure 9.2.3 Territorial scope An Overview of Migration Databases	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 232
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations 9.2.1 Supranational competences 9.2.2 Decentralised network structure 9.2.3 Territorial scope An Overview of Migration Databases 9.3.1 Schengen Information System (SIS)	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 232 233
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2	tabases Theory and Policy Design 9.1.1 Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure 9.1.2 'Function creep' over three decades Constitutional Foundations 9.2.1 Supranational competences 9.2.2 Decentralised network structure 9.2.3 Territorial scope An Overview of Migration Databases 9.3.1 Schengen Information System (SIS) 9.3.2 Eurodac	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 230 232 233 234
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.39.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.3Visa Information System (VIS)9.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.3Visa Information System (VIS)9.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence9.4.1From support to automated processing	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 237
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.3Visa Information System (VIS)9.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 237 239
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3 9.4	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.3Visa Information System (VIS)9.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence9.4.1From support to automated processing9.4.2Quality concerns and implementation deficits9.4.3The spectre of 'interoperability'	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 236 237 239 241
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3 9.4	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.3Visa Information System (VIS)9.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence9.4.1From support to automated processing9.4.2Quality concerns and implementation deficits	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 237 239 241 243
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3 9.4	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.39.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence9.4.1From support to automated processing9.4.2Quality concerns and implementation deficits9.4.3The spectre of 'interoperability'Respect for Data Protection Standards9.5.1Principles of data protection	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 236 237 239 241 243
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3 9.4	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.3Visa Information System (VIS)9.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence9.4.1From support to automated processing9.4.2Quality concerns and implementation deficits9.4.3The spectre of 'interoperability'Respect for Data Protection Standards9.5.1Principles of data protection9.5.2Core elements of the human rights assessment	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 236 237 239 241 243 243 244
9.	Dat 9.1 9.2 9.3 9.4	tabasesTheory and Policy Design9.1.1Information technology as 'invisible' infrastructure9.1.2'Function creep' over three decadesConstitutional Foundations9.2.1Supranational competences9.2.2Decentralised network structure9.2.3Territorial scopeAn Overview of Migration Databases9.3.1Schengen Information System (SIS)9.3.2Eurodac9.3.39.3.4Travel authorisation (ETIAS)9.3.5Entry/Exit System (EES)Prospect of Interoperability and Artificial Intelligence9.4.1From support to automated processing9.4.2Quality concerns and implementation deficits9.4.3The spectre of 'interoperability'Respect for Data Protection Standards9.5.1Principles of data protection	223 224 224 225 227 227 228 228 228 230 230 230 230 232 233 234 236 236 236 237 239 241 243

PART II SECTORAL LEGISLATION AND POLICIES

10. General Features of EU Legislation	253
10.1 Acquisition of Residence Permits	254
10.1.1 Of 'residence permits' and 'visas'	254
10.1.2 Constitutive state authorisation	255
10.1.3 Fee levels	256
10.2 Sufficient Resources Requirement	257
10.3 Public Policy Exception	258
10.3.1 Overlap with Union citizenship	259
10.3.2 Sector-specific outcomes	260
10.4 Equal Treatment as a Constitutional Guarantee	262
10.4.1 Human rights instead of Union citizenship	262
10.4.2 Different scrutiny levels in the judicial practice	264
10.4.3 Distinctions based on migration status	265
10.4.4 Racial and ethnic discrimination	266
10.5 Proportionality	267
10.5.1 Context-specific outcomes	267
10.5.2 Abstract or individual assessment?	269
10.6 More Favourable Domestic Rules	270
10.6.1 Identification of mandatory provisions	270
10.6.2 Different patterns in secondary legislation	271
10.7 Exceptional Non-Compliance (Article 72 TFEU)	273
10.8 Abusive Practices	275
10.9 Practical Tips for Dealing with Legislation	276
10.10 Summary	278
11. Visa Policy	280
11.1 Theory and Policy Design	281
11.2 Constitutional Foundations	282
11.2.1 Supranational competences	282
11.2.2 Territorial scope	282
11.3 Visa Requirements	283
11.3.1 Rationale behind 'black' and 'white' lists	283
11.3.2 Visa liberalisation as a bargaining chip	285
11.3.3 Reciprocity in relations with third states	287
11.4 Visa Procedure	288
11.4.1 Admission criteria	288
11.4.2 Application procedure	290
11.4.3 Decision and legal remedies	291
11.4.4 Visa format	292
11.4.5 Inter-state cooperation	292
11.5 Special Case: Humanitarian Visas	294
11.6 Other Pre-arrival Measures	295
11.6.1 Carrier sanctions	295
11.6.2 Export of visa policy to transit countries	297
11.0.5 Liaison officers abroad	298
11.7 Summary	299

12.	2. Border Controls			301
	12.1	Theor	y and Policy Design	302
		12.1.1	Symbolic weight of borders	302
		12.1.2	Incomplete 'territorialisation' of the EU	303
		12.1.3	Towards a new 'culture' of border controls	304
	12.2	Const	itutional Foundations	305
		12.2.1	Supranational competences	305
		12.2.2	Extraterritorial reach of human rights	306
		12.2.3	Search and rescue at sea	308
		12.2.4	Rejection at the border	309
			12.2.4.1 Right to asylum and prohibition of refoulement	309
			12.2.4.2 Prohibition of collective expulsion	310
		12.2.5	Territorial scope	311
	12.3		gen Governance	311
			Membership and phased implementation	312
			Crises and reform efforts	313
			Scope of the 'Schengen acquis'	315
	12.4		al Movements within the Schengen Area	316
		12.4.1	Circulation of third country nationals	317
			12.4.1.1 Free travel for short stays	317
			12.4.1.2 Secondary movements of asylum applicants	318
		12.4.2	Internal border controls	319
			12.4.2.1 Requirements for temporary reintroduction	319
			12.4.2.2 Extensive and illegal state practice	320
			Police checks in border areas	322
	12.5		nal Controls at Crossing Points	324
			Entry conditions	324
			Checks on persons	325 327
			Refusal of entry and legal remedies	327
	10 (Local border traffic	328
	12.6		illance of the External Borders	328
			Land borders	329
			Interaction with asylum law	330
		12.6.3	Sea borders 12.6.3.1 Sea Borders Regulation	332
			12.6.3.2 Basic procedural safeguards	333
	127	Docu	ment Security	334
		Sumn		335
			•
13.			European Asylum System	337 338
	13.1		y and Policy Design	338
			A history of half-hearted commitment	339
		13.1.2	Early years of intergovernmental cooperation	341
			First and second phase of harmonisation	342
			Policy crisis of 2015/16	344
			Elusive reform efforts	345
		13.1.6	Geopolitics enter the political equation Structural deficits and their fallout	347
	120		Structural dencits and their failout	349
	13.2		Supranational competences	349
		13.2.1	Supranatonal competences

xvi	CONTENTS	5
	13.2.2	Prohibition of refoulement	351
	13.2.3	Right to asylum	353
		13.2.3.1 Article 18 CFR	353
		13.2.3.2 Protocol on Union citizens	354
	13.2.4	Solidarity (Article 80 TFEU)	355
	13.2.5	Territorial scope	357
	13.3 Asylu	m Jurisdiction	357
	13.3.1	Origin of the first entry rule	358
	13.3.2	Futile quest for solidarity	360
	13.3.3	Hierarchy of the substantive criteria	362 364
	13.3.4	Scope and procedure
		Take charge/back requests	365
	13.3.6	Mutual trust and its limits	368 370
		Secondary movements and the transfer of jurisdiction
		m Procedures	3 72 373
	13.4.1	Access to the procedure	373
		Personal interview and individualised assessment	374
	13.4.3	Sixfold procedural differentiation	376
		13.4.3.1 Asylum jurisdiction and admissibility	376
		13.4.3.2 Regular and accelerated examination	377
		13.4.3.3 Subsequent applications and withdrawal	378
		Border procedures	379
	13.4.5	Safe countries	381
		13.4.5.1 Safe countries of origin and common lists	381
		13.4.5.2 Rebuttal of the presumption of safety13.4.5.3 Controversies about safe third countries	383
	12.4.6	5 Legal remedies	385
		Recurring 'vision': external processing	385
	13.5 Refu		385
		Preventing disparate recognition quotas	387
		2 Standards and burden of proof	388
		3 Notion of persecution	390
	10.00	13.5.3.1 Severe violation of basic human rights	390
		13.5.3.2 Refugees sur place and family members	390
		13.5.3.3 Poverty	392
		13.5.3.4 Climate change	393
	13.5.4	4 Actors of protection	394
		13.5.4.1 Home state and international organisations	394
		13.5.4.2 Internal protection alternative	395
	13.5.	5 Reasons for persecution	396
		13.5.5.1 Membership of a particular social group	396
		13.5.5.2 Refusal to perform military service	397
	13.5.	6 Exclusion and cessation	398
		13.5.6.1 Palestinian refugees	398
		13.5.6.2 Terrorism and other serious crime	399
		13.5.6.3 Change of circumstance in the home state	400
	13.6 Subs	sidiary and Complementary Protection	400
	13.6.	1 Added value of Europeanisation	400
	13.6.	2 Protection against indiscriminate violence	401
	13.6	3 Other scenarios: divergence from human rights	403

			'Complementary' protection under national laws	403
	13.7	-	rary Protection	405
			Rationale behind blanket recognition	405
			Conditions and contents of temporary protection	406
			Interaction with EU migration law	408
	13.8		ion Conditions for Asylum Applicants	410
			Protracted differences between the Member States	410
		13.8.2	Living conditions and other guarantees	411
		13.8.3	Restrictions and human rights compliance	412
			Right to remain and 'fiction of non-entry'	414
	13.9		of Beneficiaries of International Protection	415
			Limits of equal treatment	415
		13.9.2	Specific guarantees	416
		13.9.3	Free movement and option of 'uniform status'	417
			Refugees without protection status	418
	13.10	Resettle	ement and Other Legal Pathways	420
			Soft side of asylum policy	420
			EU resettlement framework	421
		13.10.3	Other protracted entry procedures	423
	13.11	Summa	ary	424
14.	Legal	Migrati	on	427
	-	-	and Policy Design	428
			'Guest workers' outside the reach of EU institutions	428
			Family bonds as a critical gateway	429
			Globalisation and the 'battle' over labour migration	431
			Sectoral approach to economic migration	432
			Limits of Europeanisation	433
		14.1.6	Effects on the welfare state	434
	14.2	Constit	utional Foundations	435
		14.2.1	Supranational competences	436
			National prerogatives for labour migration	437
		14.2.3	Human rights, family life, and rights of the child	438
		14.2.4	Territorial scope	439
	14.3	Family	Reunification	440
			EU citizens and their family members	440
		14.3.2	Scope of the Family Reunification Directive	443
			14.3.2.1 Limitation to the nuclear family	443
			14.3.2.2 Optional clauses	444
		14.3.3	Conditions under the Directive	445
		14.3.4	Procedure and rights of family members	445
			Beneficiaries of international protection	447
	14.4	Skilled	Labour Migration	448
			Regulatory toolbox and driving forces beyond the law	448 450
		14.4.2	Blue Card Directive	430 450
			14.4.2.1 Personal and thematic scope	430
			14.4.2.2 Procedure and rights of blue card holders	432
		14.4.3	Students and Researchers Directive	455
			14.4.3.1 Students as 'ideal immigrants'	455
			14.4.3.2 Delegation of responsibility to research organisations	7.77

xviii	co	NTENTS
		14.4.4 Single Permit Directive	455
		14.4.5 Vexed issue of intra-European mobility	456
	14.5	Temporary Economic Activities	458
		14.5.1 Posted workers in the single market	459
		14.5.2 GATS and other trade agreements	460
		14.5.3 Inter-Corporate Transfers Directive	461
		14.5.4 Seasonal Workers Directive	463
		14.5.5 Legal pathways for economic purposes	464
	14.6	Summary	466
15.	Integ	gration and Settlement	469
		Theory and Policy Design	470
		15.1.1 From 'denizenship' to citizenship	470
		15.1.2 Models of migrant integration	472
		15.1.3 Disputes over the direction of EU migration law	473
		15.1.4 Status change in multiple directions	474
		15.1.5 Mixed output in migration law and beyond	475
	15.2	Constitutional Foundations	476
		15.2.1 Scope of supranational competences	477
		15.2.2 Human rights protection against expulsion	477
		15.2.3 Territorial scope	478
	15.3	Equality Provisions in Secondary Legislation	479
		15.3.1 Complexity of the legislative framework	479
		15.3.2 Overarching doctrinal characteristics	481
		15.3.3 Social security other benefits	482
		15.3.3.1 Exclusion from social assistance and advantages	482
		15.3.3.2 Human rights compliance	484
		15.3.4 Disparate effects of equal treatment	484
		15.3.5 Distinctions between refugees and subsidiary protection	486
	15.4	Mandatory Integration Requirements	487
		15.4.1 Proliferation and significance of domestic laws	488
		15.4.2 Supranational legal framework	489
		15.4.3 Judicial endorsement, subject to a caveat	491
		5 Other Integration Measures	492
	15.6	5 Long-Term Residents Directive	494
		15.6.1 Independence from the original purpose	494
		15.6.2 Scope and conditions	4 9 6
	15.5	15.6.3 Procedure and loss	497
	15.	7 Acquisition of Nationality	498
		15.7.1 Conceptual lacuna of EU migration law	499
		15.7.2 Member State prerogatives and their limits under EU law	500
	15	15.7.3 'Golden passport' schemes	502
		8 Summary	503
16.		egular Presence and Return	505
	16.	1 Theory and Policy Design	505
		16.1.1 Beyond binary conceptions of (il)legality	506
		16.1.2 Relentless search for effectiveness	507
	14	16.1.3 Contrasting policy dynamics	508
	10.	2 Constitutional Foundations	509

		16.2.1	Supranational competences	510
		16.2.2	Detention in conformity with human rights	511
		16.2.3	Human rights of those irregularly present	513
		16.2.4	Territorial scope	514
	16.3	Crimi	nalisation of Illegal Entry and Stay	514
		16.3.1	Prosecution of 'smuggling'	515
		16.3.2	Intimidation of search and rescue	517
		16.3.3	Limits for criminal sanctions	518
		16.3.4	Victims of trafficking	520
		16.3.5	Employer sanctions	522
	16.4		on Entry and Stay	524
			Refusal for different reasons	524
			Entry bans under the Return Directive	525
	16.5		ure of the Return Directive	526
			Reasons for illegal stay	527
			Exceptions from the scope	528
			Return decision	528
			Voluntary departure and removal	530
			Limbo of 'non-removable' returnees	532
	16.6		state Cooperation	533
			Mutual recognition of expulsion decisions	534
			Cooperation between the Member States	535
			Return to other Member States	536
			Readmission agreements with third states	537
	16.7	Deten	-	539
			Delimitation of EU legislation	539
			Grounds for detention	540
			16.7.2.1 Risk of absconding	541
			16.7.2.2 Other criteria for asylum seekers	542
			16.7.2.3 Additional grounds for returnees	543
		1673	Alternatives and length	544
			Conditions of detention	545
	168		arisation	546
		Summ		547
				550
17.			n Agreements with Neighbours	550
	17.1	Const	itutional Foundations	551
			Supranational competences	551
			Status in the EU legal order	552
			Interpretative parallelism and its limits	553
	17.2		riends': European Economic Area and Switzerland	555
			Free movement of persons	555
			Membership in Schengen and Dublin	557
			Micro states and Gibraltar	558
	17.3	United	d Kingdom: Reversed Dynamics	559
		17.3.1	Acquired rights of (former) Union citizens	559
		17.3.2	Sovereign control over future movements	560
	17.4	Turke	y: 'Consolation Prize' with Much Practical Effects	561
			Turkish nationals residing in the Member States	561
		17.4.2	'Standstill' as dynamism for first admission	563

хx	CONTENTS
	17.5	Wester	rn Balkans: Pre-accession Guarantees	564
			Former agreements and transitional periods	564
			Limited impact of contemporary agreements	565
	17.6		bourhood: Novel Focus on Migration Control	566
			Eastern partnership: pragmatic cooperation	566
		17.6.2	Union for the Mediterranean: hotbed of control practices	567
	17.7	Summ		568
18.	International Cooperation with Third States			570
	18.1	Theory and Policy Design
		18.1.1	'Migration management' as an overarching narrative	571
		18.1.2	A short history of the EU's strategic vision	573
		18.1.3	Trial and error of external migration policy	575
		18.1.4	Give and take in the mutual interest	576
	18.2	Constitutional Foundations		577
			Supranational competences	578
			Spread of informal cooperation frameworks	579
	18.3	Externalisation of Control Practices
			A recurring theme in the policy discourse	581
			Conditionality: 'carrots and sticks' for cooperation	583
			Capacity building and operational cooperation	586
			EU involvement via Frontex and CSDP missions	587
	18.4		opment Cooperation and Legal Pathways	588
		18.4.1	Contextual complexity of the migration-development nexus	589
		18.4.2	Financial support for multiple purposes	590
		18.4.3	Refugee protection in the Global South	591
			From 'mobility' to 'talent' partnerships	593
	18.5 Summary		595
Bibli	iogra	phy		597
Inde.	ndex			577

635