

Contents

List of figures	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Part I
Introduction	1
Preface	3
Andreas Vesalius, from Brussels to Padua	5
Anatomy before Vesalius	11
Johann Guinter and the Institutiones anatomicae	22
Vesalius' revision of the Institutiones, 1538	27
Vesalius' annotations	33
Towards the Fabrica	36
The dog that did not bark	42
Conclusion: The Institutiones in context	45
Part II
Translation: The principles of anatomy according to the opinion of Galen	59
Principles of Anatomy according to the Opinion of Galen, for medical students, in four books by Johann Guinter of Andernach, enlarged and improved by Andreas Wesalius of Brussels, Venice, at the printing house of Signore Bernardino, 1538	60
Vesalius' preface	61
Guinter's preface	63
Book I	71
Book II	107

Book III	135
Book IV	147
Appendix: Vesalius' annotations transcribed	167
Bibliography	177
Index to the 1538 edition	184
Index to the introduction and notes	188