

Science and Religion in Western Literature

Critical and Theological Studies

Edited by Michael Fuller

Contents

List of Contributors	vii
Introduction	1
MICHAEL FULLER
1 Science and Religion Themes in Philip Pullman’s His Dark Materials and The Book of Dust: Sin and Evolution, Panpsychism, and the Dangers of ‘Single Vision’	7
VICTORIA LORRIMAR
2 Weird Tales: The Shifting Role of Science and Religion in Literature’s Search for Truth	25
ALISON JACK
3 ‘Heretical ... Dangerous and Potentially Subversive’: The Problem of Science and Religion in Aldous Huxley’s Brave New World	40
MARK HARRIS
4 Radical Plurality: Science and Religion in the Writings of Karel Čapek	57
MICHAEL FULLER
5 The Spirit of Nature in Natural Philosophy and Literature from the Cambridge Platonists to Coleridge	76
ALISON MILBANK
6 The Wound of Knowledge: R. S. Thomas’ Cruciform Poetics of Science and Religion	94
WILSON C. K. POON

vi	Contents
7	Cosmic Consciousness: Henry James, William James, and the Society for Psychical Research	110
	MARK EATON
8	Marie Corelli's Electric Creed: Science, Religion, and Popular Fiction at the end of the Nineteenth Century	126
	DAVID JASPER
9	Left Behind? Religion as a Vestige in 'The Rapture of the Nerds' and Other AI Singularity Literature	136
	BETH SINGLER
10	Can Religion Save the Planet? Looking for Hope within the Eco-Religions of Climate Fiction	151
	JAIME WRIGHT
	Afterword	169
	CHRISTOPHER SOUTHGATE
	Index	177