

CONFLICTING IMAGES

Histories of War Photography
in the News

Stuart Allan and Tom Allbeson

CONTENTS

List of figures	vii
Introduction: The In/visibilities of War Photography	1
PART I
The Emergence of War Photography in the Nineteenth Century	15
1 Photographic Dispatches from the Frontline	17
2 Configurations of the ‘War Photographer’	35
PART II
Twentieth-Century Conflicts and the Age of Photojournalism	55
3 Imperialism, Officialdom, and Human Interest in the First World War	57
4 The Emergence of Photojournalism in a Revolutionary Era	83

vi Contents

5	Photojournalism Mobilised: The Allied War Effort in the Second World War	102
6	Concerned Photographers between Decolonial Violence and Cold War Conflict	125
7	Re-Assertive Militaries and Self-Reflective Media at Century's End	150
PART III
	Digital Conflict Imagery in the Twenty-First Century	177
8	Digital Visions of the September 11 Attacks and the 'War on Terror'	179
9	The 'Visual Doctrine' of War Photography in Iraq	195
10	Citizen Imagery of Asymmetric Warfare	213
11	Visual Evidence and the Precarities of War Photography	228
	References	240
	Index	266

FIGURES

- 0.1 ‘The Last American soldier to leave Afghanistan’; tweet by US Department of Defense (31 August 2021) featuring cellphone image of Army Major General Chris Donahue taken through night-vision scope; photographer: Alex Burnett. Screenshot from Twitter 2
- 0.2 ‘Mexican War drummer’; daguerreotype portraying young man in US Army infantry drummer’s uniform (created between 1846 and 1848). Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 6
- 1.1 ‘The artist’s van’; salted paper print showing Marcus Sparling seated on Fenton’s photographic van (1855); photographer: Roger Fenton. Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 20
- 1.2 ‘English infantry piling arms’; salted paper print comprising group portrait of six posed soldiers and officers of the 3rd Regiment, The Buffs (1855); photographer: Roger Fenton. Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 21
- 1.3 ‘Cold Harbor, Virginia (vicinity). Collecting remains of dead on the battlefield’; photograph showing skeletal remains and clothing of Union soldiers piled on a stretcher months after the battle near Cold Harbor, Virginia (1865); photographer: John Reekie. Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 29

- 1.4 'M.B. Brady's new photographic gallery, corner of Broadway and 10th Street, New York'; wood engraving depicting Brady's gallery; published in Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper (5 January 1861), p. 108. Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 31
- 2.1 'General view of the wrecked battleship Maine, Havana Harbor, Cuba'; stereographic card by Keystone View Company showing the destroyed USS Maine (1898). Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 41
- 2.2 'James H. Hare'; portrait of photographer Jimmy Hare holding plate camera, published in The American Magazine (February 1913), p. 29; photographer: E. Raba 43
- 2.3 Frances Benjamin Johnston with camera on balcony of State, War and Navy Building, Washington, D.C. (1888). Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 49
- 2.4 'Royal Munster Fusiliers fighting from behind the redoubt at Honey Nest Kloof, South Africa'; photographic print (originally from stereographic card by Underwood & Underwood) depicting medics treating the wounded during the Boer War (16 February 1900). Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 51
- 3.1 'In the Russian Trenches During the Fighting at Taling' and 'With the War Correspondents in Korea and Manchuria'; full-page photograph (top) showing Russian troops and four photographic group portraits (bottom) of war correspondents including photographers Viktor Bulla, Robert Dunn and Jimmy Hare; James H. Hare (ed.), Collier's Photographic Record of the Russo-Japanese War (1905), pp. 176 & 199. Author's own collection 60
- 3.2 'A Pile of Fifty Men and Boys'; photograph showing victims murdered by Italian troops on 26 October 1911; Francis McCullagh, Italy's War for a Desert (1912); photographer: Thomas Grant. Author's own collection 62
- 3.3 'The Most Wonderful Battle Picture of All'; front page of Daily Sketch (20 January 1915) featuring amateur photograph taken from the crow's nest of HMS Invincible showing German sailors in the sea off the Falkland Islands. Author's own collection 69
- 3.4 Official photographer to the Canadian Expeditionary Force, Ivor Castle, installing a composite, hand-tinted photographic print ('Dreadnoughts of the Battlefield,' depicting tanks on the Western Front) for the exhibition, 'British Official War Photographs,' Bradford (1919); photographer: George P. Lewis. Imperial War Museums 74

- 3.5 ‘Moonlight Silhouette’; silhouetted soldiers on the Western Front and three other night-time photographs (‘Vivid Picture of a Battle Scene,’ ‘An Officer Making His Last Round at Night’ and ‘A Battery of Field Artillery’); Saturday Evening Post (19 October 1918), pp. 8–9. Author’s own collection 78
- 4.1 ‘Crowd Mown Down by Machine Guns at Petrograd’; frontpage photograph of anti-government demonstration fired upon by troops in former Russian capital; Daily Mirror (19 September 1917); photographer in Petrograd: Viktor Bulla. Author’s own collection 87
- 4.2 ‘The Tragedy of Spain’; cover of Weekly Illustrated (15 August 1936) showing an armed and uniformed woman recruit and double-page spread (pp. 4–5) comprising eight photographs depicting Republican volunteers and victims in Barcelona; photographer: David Seymour. Cardiff University Special Collections and Archives 95
- 4.3 ‘The Camera Overseas: 136,000,000 People See this Picture of Shanghai’s South Station’; full-page photograph depicting refugee child victim of Japanese bombing; Life (4 October 1937) p. 102; photographer: H.S. Wong. Author’s own collection 99
- 5.1 ‘The East End at War’; from a photo-story depicting the impact of bombing in East London, including a portrait of a foster mother with a young boy (left) and a double-page spread comprising six street scenes; Picture Post (28 September 1940), front cover and pp. 10–11; photographer: Bert Hardy. Hulton Archive 105
- 5.2 ‘War – they asked for it – now, by the living God, they’ll get it’; installation shot from ‘Road to Victory: A Procession of Photographs of the Nation at War,’ Museum of Modern Art, New York (1942), comprising three photographs including a portrait of a farm worker by Dorothea Lange (1938) and a picture of the USS Shaw during the attack on Pearl Harbour (7 December 1941); photographer: Samuel Gottscho. The Museum of Modern Art, New York 107
- 5.3 ‘Birth of a War Picture’ and ‘Soldiers of the Propaganda Army’; from a photo-story picturing the work of the British Army Film and Photographic Unit in North Africa; comprises one page with photograph of cameraman at work and reproductions of war pictures in the press (left) and a double-page spread featuring 12 photographs from different stages of the process of producing and reproducing war pictures; Illustrated (20 June 1942), pp. 9 & 12–13; photographers: AFPU. Author’s own collection 110

x Figures

- 5.4 Untitled colour photograph produced for the US Office of War Information depicting an unnamed Black woman operating a hand drill during the construction of a bomber at the Vultee Aircraft Plant in Nashville, Tennessee (February 1943); photographer: Alfred T. Palmer. Library of Congress Prints and Photographs Division, USA 112
- 5.5 'Three Americans'; full-page photograph depicting dead American soldiers on Buna Beach, New Guinea (February 1943); Life (20 September 1943), pp. 34–35; photographer: George Strock. Author's own collection 114
- 6.1 'Terror in Korea: An Appeal to the UN'; double-page spread from a dummy for Picture Post (October 1950) that was never published, including two photographs (left) of groups of prisoners of war roped together with heads shaven and one full-page portrait (right) of another prisoner, captioned 'The Boy Who is Accused of Opposing Syngman Rhee'; photographer: Bert Hardy. Tom Hopkinson Collection, Cardiff University Special Collections and Archives 128
- 6.2 'Spikes for Mau Mau'; double-page spread comprising six photographs depicting counterinsurgency measures directed against anticolonial rebels, including photographs showing the construction of traps and Mau Mau survivors of an attack by the King's African Rifles being made to carry the bodies of fellow insurgents, as well as members of the same regiment observing the corpse of a dead rebel leader; Life (1 March 1954), pp. 30–31; photographer: George Rodger. Cardiff University Special Collections and Archives 133
- 6.3 '1962 – The Year That Nearly Ended in October'; year-end review issue of The Sunday Times Colour Section (30 December 1962) with cover depicting John Glenn following his orbit around the earth (20 February 1962) during the Cold War 'space race' and double-page spread (pp. 2–3), illustrating the Cuban Missile Crisis (16–28 October 1962) via photographs of John F. Kennedy, Fidel Castro, and Nikita Khrushchev, as well as two photographs depicting a uniformed US serviceman with binoculars at Guantanamo Bay and the nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, USS Enterprise. Cardiff University Special Collections and Archives 136

- 6.4 ‘Don McCullin’; double-page spread with a small inset portrait of McCullin (left hand page) wearing combat fatigues and carrying a camera, placed opposite his famous photograph of a traumatised looking US Soldier in Hue, South Vietnam from 1968; Cornell Capa, The Concerned Photographer 2 (New York: Grossman Publishers, 1972). Author’s own collection 147
- 7.1 ‘GOTCHA: Our lads sink gunboat and hole cruiser’; frontpage of British tabloid, The Sun (4 May 1982), featuring block capital headline and stock photographs, one of a patrol boat and the other of Argentinian cruiser, ARA General Belgrano. Author’s own collection 157
- 7.2 Untitled photograph of General Norman Schwarzkopf delivering media briefing at coalition forces Central Command, Riyadh (30 January 1991) illustrated by seven photographs including ‘smart bomb’ imagery; photographer: Gilles Bassignac. Getty Images 162
- 7.3 Installation shot of ‘The Silence: Photographs by Gilles Peress,’ an exhibition documenting the aftermath of the Rwandan Genocide (Museum of Modern Art, New York, 1995) featuring nine black and white photographs by Peress that depict weapons, wounds, and human remains; photographer: Mali Olatunji. Museum of Modern Art, New York 172
- 8.1 Photograph of visitors during a press preview (31 January 2002) of the exhibition, ‘Here is New York: A Democracy of Photographs,’ installed in Chicago and comprising over 1,500 photographs taken by amateurs and professionals on or after 11 September 2001; photographer: Tim Boyle. Getty Images 183
- 8.2 ‘Hipstamatic iPhone photos of Afghanistan by Damon Winter in New York Times’; photograph of page from New York Times (22 November 2010) including four images created by Damon Winter using an iPhone; photographer: Steve Rhodes. Screenshot from Flickr 189
- 9.1 ‘Collateral Murder’; frame from video showing Reuters war photographer, Namir Noor-Eldeen, his assistant Saeed Chmagh, and others being fired upon and killed by a US military helicopter in Baghdad (12 July 2007). Screenshot from YouTube 204

9.2	‘Fallujah – Iraqi insurgents fire a mortar and small arms during the US-led offensive against insurgents in the city’ (8 November 2004); photographer: Bilal Hussein. Associated Press/Alamy	207
9.3	US Air Force Senior Airman Kamaile Chan, assigned to Joint Combat Camera-Iraq, after completing a photo shoot at an Iraqi police vehicle maintenance compound, Mosul (10 August 2009); photographer: Carmichael Yopez. US Department of Defense/Wikimedia Commons	210
10.1	Risa Turken reads coverage of terror attacks in London in The New York Times on the subway during morning rush hour (8 July 2005) in New York City; photographer: Mario Tama. Getty Images	216
11.1	‘War photographer Lynsey Addario on what drives her into danger’; frame from video about Addario hosted on ‘CBC News: The National’ channel (posted 21 May 2019). Screenshot from YouTube	229
11.2	TikTok homepage (7 June 2022) featuring Ukraine war-related content comprising frames from eight different videos. Screenshot from TikTok	235