

MEDIA & SOCIETY

POWER, PLATFORMS, & PARTICIPATION

NICHOLAS CARAH

SECOND EDITION

 SAGE

Los Angeles | London | New Delhi
Singapore | Washington DC | Melbourne

CONTENTS

About the author	xi
Acknowledgements	xiii
Online resources page	xv
Introduction	1
How is meaning made?	1
How is power made and maintained?	2
What does today's culture industry look like?	5
How do platform media organize meaning making, participation and data-processing?	6
What is the role of professional communicators in the exercise of power?	7
Engaging with academic debate	9
Journal articles and academic publication	9
1 Meaning, Representation and Power	15
Introduction	16
What are media?	16
The development of media over time	18
Communication, media, receiver	21
Making meaning	25
The power to influence meaning making	27
What is the relationship between power and elite groups?	27
Where does power come from?	29
What is the relationship between meaning and power?	30
The struggle over meaning: introducing hegemony	33
The more legitimacy dominant groups have, the less violence they need to employ	33
Defining hegemony	34
Conclusion	40
Further reading	41

2 Representation	43
Representation and power	44
Texts and signs	45
Encoding/decoding	47
Control over representation	50
The relationship between meaning and power: ideology, discourse and hegemony	52
Mediatization and media rituals	55
Conclusion	69
Further reading	69
3 The Industrial Production of Meaning	71
Media and the mass society	72
Controlling who makes meaning and where meaning is made	74
The power of industrialized meaning making	76
Pictures in our heads	77
Engineering consent	79
The culture industry	81
Agenda setting	84
The industrial production of meaning from the mass to the platform era	85
Conclusion	94
Further reading	94
4 Power and Media Production	95
What does the media make?	96
Meaning and power	98
Becoming hegemonic	99
How do groups become hegemonic?	100
Hegemony and the art of managing discourses	101
Managing the meaning makers	102
Shifting hegemonies	103
A new hegemonic order	104
Digital communication technologies	105
Digital communication channels undermined mass production and communication	106
The emergence of niche audiences, publics and markets	107
Are we active?	107
Conclusion	113
Further reading	114

5 Global Networks	115
What happened to the mass society?	116
Reorganizing capitalism	119
A new geography of power	120
Networks and information	122
Is this platform capitalism?	126
Conclusion	140
Further reading	141
6 Platform Media	143
From network to platform	144
What is a platform?	146
Engineering connectivity	150
Analysing media platforms	154
Conclusion	165
Further reading	165
7 Social Media, Streaming and Logistics	167
Platform types	168
Social media platforms	168
Streaming platforms	170
Logistical platforms	173
Platformization and platform biographies	176
Conclusion	185
Further reading	186
8 Participatory and Algorithmic Culture	187
Participation, data and power	188
Participatory culture	189
What is surveillance?	192
Algorithms and machine learning	193
Algorithmic culture	196
Automated media and algorithmic accountability	197
Algorithmic imaginaries	204
Conclusion	216
Further reading	217

9 Making and Managing Audiences	219
Producing audiences	220
How are media organizations funded?	220
Measuring and packaging audiences	221
What makes audiences valuable?	225
From representational to responsive control	226
The work of producing audiences	228
Audiences and work	229
The work of watching	230
The work of being watched	231
Audience participation in the work of being watched	233
What makes digital advertising powerful?	236
Conclusion	246
Further reading	246
10 Producing and Negotiating Identities	249
What is identity?	250
Identity is embedded within representation	250
Identity is socially constructed	250
Identity is relational	251
Making collective identity	251
From the mass to the individual	253
Individual responsibility in everyday life	255
Performing our identities	256
Digital intimacies	259
Conclusion	272
Further reading	272
11 News and Strategic Communication	275
The emergence of professional journalism	276
News-making routines	276
News is a window on the world	278
The sites of news making	280
Digital newsrooms and newsmaking	280
The symbiotic relationship between journalists and strategic communicators	282

News and strategic communication in the platform era	286
Changing gatekeepers	288
Are platforms good gatekeepers?	290
Strategic political communication in the platform era	292
Conclusion	299
Further reading	300
12 Brand Culture	301
What is a brand?	302
Brands and mass consumption	302
Brands and culture	303
The creative revolution	305
The ambivalence of brand culture	306
Brand value	308
Influencers	310
Brands within participatory and algorithmic culture	313
Conclusion	319
Further reading	320
13 Media and Communication Professionals	321
Professional communicators	322
Producing professional communicators	322
Immaterial and creative labour	323
Freedom and autonomy	324
‘Good’ and ‘bad’ work	325
Flexibility	327
Productivity	328
Self-promotion	329
Below-the-line work	331
Internships	333
Conclusion	341
Further reading	342
14 Managing Participation	343
Meaning and power	344
Meaning, data and power in the platform era	344
Relationship between speaking and being heard	344

Relationship between making meaning and exercising power	346
Relationship between participation and the data-processing power of media	349
From the broadcast to the platform	352
Conclusion	360
Further reading	362
References	365
Index	389