

Nicoletta Bersier • Christoph Bezemek •
Frederick Schauer
Editors

Common Law – Civil Law

The Great Divide?

Contents

Introduction . . . . .	1
Nicoletta Bersier, Christoph Bezemek, and Frederick Schauer
Civil Law, Common Law, and the Data of Jurisprudence . . . . .	5
Frederick Schauer
‘The Law Works Itself Pure’: Reflections on a Cherished Trope . . . . .	17
Christoph Bezemek
The Chain Novel and Its Normative Fine Structure in Civil Law and Common Law: Dworkin, Brandom and Law’s Normativity . . . . .	29
Stefan Arnold
The Civil Law as the Foundation of the Common Law: Roscoe Pound Considers the Origins of the Common Law . . . . .	51
Nicoletta Bersier
Tree Diagram or Pyramid of Norms? . . . . .	61
Michael Potacs
The Invisible Foundations of Originalism . . . . .	71
Alessio Sardo
Presumption(s) of Correctness(?): Comparing the Methodological Relevance of Precedents in Civil Law and in Common Law Systems . . .	95
Ana Margarida Simões Gaudêncio
Profiling the American Judge: A Comparative Argument About Ideological Conceptions of Judging . . . . .	117
Patricio Nazareno
Two Worlds of Legal Scholarship and the Philosophy of Law . . . . .	141
Alexander Somek

Is China a Continental-Law Country? . . . . .	155
Han Liu
Dworkin and the Aspirations of International Law . . . . .	169
Lars Vinx	