

Making National Heroes

The Exemplarist Production of Masculinities in Contemporary China

Jacqueline Zhenru Lin

Contents

List of Figures	viii
Preface	ix
Acknowledgements	xi
Introduction: Searching for the National Hero in the Shadow of Chinese History	1
1. Searching for the Authentic Chinese Martyrs in Myanmar: Necromantic Nationalism and Contesting (Fore)Fatherhood in War Commemoration	19
2. We Will Take You to Taiwan to Look for Your Father: The Masculine Fascination with Reunion across the Taiwan Strait	41
3. Unbearable Glory: Sexual Discipline and Dialogic Mechanism in the Exemplarist Production of Hegemonic Masculinities	63
4. Rescuing Embattled Masculinity and Idealising True Love: Male Bonding between Veterans beyond Political Ideologies in Contemporary China	81
5. Protecting Endangered Masculinity and Guarding the Innocent Warrior: Women Supporting the Exemplarist Production of Masculinities	103
6. Masculinity in the Third Sector: Male Homosociality in #MeToo within China's NGO Sector	123
7. Conclusion: The Exemplarist Production of Chinese Masculinities	147
Glossary	155
References	159
Index	173

Figures

Figure 4.1: Chen and Ying in the 'before' photos posted online by Bing	99
Figure 4.2: Chen and Ying in the 'after' photos posted online by Bing	99
Figure 5.1: Xue Mei being pushed aside in a commemorative ritual	104
Figure 5.2: Xue Mei visiting a local cemetery for the KMT fallen soldiers who died in a battle defending the city of Changsha during the war	107
Figure 5.3: Micky and the 'hero' who admired Mao	114
Figure 6.1: Annual donations to the UF	134