

Contents

Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction	1
1. Skepticism, Caution, and Conservatism	15
1.1 Bizarro Descartes	19
1.2 Skepticism and Certainty	22
1.3 Skepticism and Rationality Stereotypes	23
1.4 Epistemology and Action	25
1.5 Conservatism	29
1.6 Status-Quo Bias	31
1.7 Beyond Skepticism	36
2. Positive Epistemology and the Duty to Believe	38
2.1 Epistemology Is Normative	38
2.2 Negative Bias in Epistemology	41
2.3 Misinformation and Conspiracy Theories	44
2.4 Positive Epistemology	47
2.5 Prohibitions on Suspension of Judgment?	51
2.6 Social Epistemology, Norms of Belief, and Norms of Inquiry	53
2.7 Negative Surrogate Norms	54
2.8 Arguments against Positive Epistemic Norms	56
2.9 What Must We Believe?	57
2.10 Negative Epistemology as Ideology	60
2.11 Taking Stock	64
3. Do Beliefs Need Justification?	66
3.1 'Justification' in the History of Epistemology	67
3.2 Homophobic and Ableist Language	71
3.3 Justification, Excuses, and Presupposition	74
3.4 Justification Is for Presumptive Wrongs	78
3.5 Is Epistemic 'Justification' Different?	80
3.6 Is Belief Presumptively Wrong?	82
3.7 When 'Justification' Language Is Apt	85
3.8 The Presumptive Status of Belief	86
3.9 Are Beliefs Presumptively Good?	88
3.10 Alternatives to 'Justification'	90
4. Moral and Pragmatic Encroachment	93
4.1 Encroachment	94
4.2 No Encroachment on the Epistemically Fundamental	96

4.3	Pragmatic Encroachment and High Risk of Suspension	99
4.4	Epistemic Privilege, Standpoint Epistemology, and Oppression	103
4.5	Moral Encroachment and High Risk of Suspension	105
4.6	Moral Encroachment and Doxastic Wronging	105
4.7	Non-Evidential Epistemic Reasons	111
4.8	Courage, Hope, and Caution	114
4.9	Epistemic Anxiety, Hopeful Belief, and Epistemic Courage	116
5.	Faith and Doubt in Epistemology	119
5.1	Faith versus Reason?	121
5.2	Evidentially Supported Faith	122
5.3	Faith, Trust, and Questioning	127
5.4	Faith and Logic	129
5.5	Reasoning and Induction	130
5.6	Science, Religion, and Political Identity	132
5.7	Alternative Facts	133
5.8	Standpoint Theory	136
5.9	Acquired Perceptual Abilities	139
5.10	What Is Faith?	142
5.11	Faith and Vicious Circularity	143
5.12	The Ethics of Argument and Engagement	145
5.13	Unsettling Questions and Epistemic Courage	146
6.	Epistemic Courage	148
6.1	Virtue Epistemology: Some Clarifications	149
6.2	Epistemic Courage, Dogmatism, and Polarization	151
6.3	An Illustration: COVID-19 Treatment	153
6.4	Epistemic Courage, Cowardice, and Rashness	157
6.5	Epistemic Courage as a Meta-Competence	159
6.6	The Relationship between Epistemic Courage and Moral Courage	160
6.7	Cultivating Epistemic Courage: Exemplars	163
6.8	Cultivating Epistemic Courage: Calibration	164
6.9	Cultivating Epistemic Courage: Attention to Likely Sources of Instincts	167
6.10	Cultivating Epistemic Courage: Practice	168
7.	Skepticism and Rape Culture	171
7.1	Testimony and Positive Norms	172
7.2	Terminological Clarifications	174
7.3	Testimony about Sexual Assault	175
7.4	Outsourcing to the Criminal Justice System	177
7.5	A “He-Said-She-Said” Situation	180
7.6	Criminal Standards	183
7.7	High Stakes (for Him)	186
7.8	Loyalty, Stability, and Identity	188

7.9	Irrelevant Alternatives?	189
7.10	Intersectionality and Epistemic Courage	191
8.	Contextual Injustice	194
8.1	Language, Power, and Sexual Harassment Allegations	195
8.2	Contextualism	197
8.3	The Triviality Worry	197
8.4	Single-Scoreboard Semantics	199
8.5	Appropriate Contextual Parameters	201
8.6	Knowledge, Contextual Parameters, and Social Power	202
8.7	Skepticism and Conservatism	205
8.8	Contextual Injustice	206
8.9	Beyond 'Knows'	208
8.10	Conclusion	209
	Bibliography	211
	Index	225